1. Claims 1-24 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: a circuit including a resonant tunneling device which is responsive to an input signal for causing an electrical signal characteristic to undergo a quantum jump in magnitude that takes an interval of time, a differentiator that responds to the quantum jump in magnitude by producing a narrow pulse with a duration which is approximately the interval of time, and a sampling portion that responds to the quantum jump in magnitude by sampling a signal during a time period having a duration which is approximately the interval of time, has not been shown in the art.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sargent et al discloses A non-linear optical semiconductor device comprising: a stack of a plurality of layers of semiconducting material having at least one quantum well bounded on each of two sides by an energy barrier with respect to transport of a charge carrier between the at least one quantum well and adjoining material on each of two sides, the quantum well having at least two bound quantum states with respect to a trapped charge carrier; an optically active zone that emits light, the optically active zone including the at least one quantum well, the optically active zone characterized by an optical gain; a carrier injector for forward-injecting carriers of a first conductivity type into the at least one quantum well; and a second carrier injector for forward-injecting carriers of a second conductivity type into the optically active zone in such a way as to vary the optical gain of the optically active zone.

Ivanov et al disclose an interferometer arrangement comprising: a source electrode and a drain electrode; a base electrode to which the source electrode and the drain electrode are connected through tunnel barriers, the base electrode thus forming a double barrier quantum well; and first and second superconducting gate electrodes to control the source-drain current, wherein the base electrode comprises a ferromagnetic material enabling resonant tunneling of source-drain electrons when there are bound states within the quantum well structure matching the energy of said source-drain electrons.
